

GERI North West Outreach Programme

Helping North West organisations to access funds for research and development...

The General Engineering Research Institute (GERI) is one of the UK's leading research groups consistently rated in the top quarter of all General Engineering research.

The Institute is based within Liverpool John Moores University and is active in a variety of fields ranging from optical metrology, advanced manufacturing technology, electronics NDT, laser processing, photonics, image processing and mechanical engineering.

HELPING YOU ACCESS FUNDS FOR RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

GERI is delighted to introduce the Outreach Project aimed at helping NW organisations to access funds for research and development.

The project is funded by the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF), and can assist you with your research strategy as a method of accessing funds.

The project can help assess your research needs, provide information on funding opportunities, build key partnerships capable of delivering, provide proposal writing support and much more...ALL AT NO COST!

WE CAN HELP YOU ACHIEVE YOUR RESEARCH & DEVELOPMENT GOALS

Ways the project can help include:

Facilities – making the 'leading edge' available through access to GERI facilities, knowledge and equipment.

Feasibility – providing preliminary investigations prior to funding opportunities being identified.

Funding – securing support for collaborative research from European, national and regional funding sources.

Contact the team for more information on how we can help.

GERI consists of four main groups of collaborative researchers

- Coherent & Electro-Optics
- Advanced Manufacturing Technology Research Laboratory
- Photonics in Engineering
- Electronic and Ultrasonic Engineering
